Reclamation of Alkali Soils.

[From the S. F. Bulletin.]

One of the most important applications of science to agriculture has lately been made by Professor E. W. Hilgard of the State University. We refer to the reclamation of alkali soils by the use of gypsum, or common landplaster, as it is generally called. Professor Hilgard has analyzed samples of this alkali soil from several sections of the State, and finds that all contain the same ingredients, the only difference being in the relative proportion of quality of such ingredients. These ingredients are carbonate of sodium (soda), sulphate of sodium (Glauber's salt), chloride of sodium (common salt) and hydric phosphate of sodium, the latter being the smallest ingredient in their composition. There are large quantities of alkali soils in the State, and a great portion are so impregnated with alkali as to be almost worthless, their only natural product being a salt grass of little value, and entirely worthless weeds. Many of our best grain farms in almost every county in the State have many acres of this kind of soil that will not produce anything under cultivation, and being infertile, surrounded with good soil, cannot well be left uncultivated, so that farmers plow and sow them annually, or biennially, at great cost of labor and seed, and get nothing for their labor and seed. Thus the profits of cultivating the good soil are eaten up and agriculture generally rendered less remunerative. There are also large quantities of alkali soil along nearly all the river bottoms, so much impregnated that they are almost worthless for any purpose. These most strongly impregnated will produce absolutely nothing. Seed sown on the worst of these soils will not even germinate, while on those containing less alkali seed will germinate under favorable circumstances, but will produce nothing, or next to nothing. It has been said that sugar beets would grow on them, and that by repeated cropping on beets for a number of years the alkali would be extracted, but we have yet to learn of a single instance where this plan of reclamation has been successful. Perhaps alfalfa will do better on alkali soils, if not to strong in alkali, than any other cultivated crop or grass, but even alfalfa will not grow where alkali abounds in any considerable quantity, except when sown under the most favorable circumstances, and it is almost impossible for the farmer to discover what those circumstances are. It has been discovered that flooding the lands containing alkali, particularly when the waters deposit sediment from the mountains, greatly improve them. This improvement, we presume, however, to be only temporary, the water washing some of the alkali from the surface, and the sediment simply reducing its proportionate quantity for a season.

Adding common barnyard manure to such soils has but little if any effect on them, as they (as shown by Professor Hilgard's analysis), already contain a large percentage of phosphates, but so combined with other ingredients that they cannot operate in favor of production. Cultivation and exposure to the sun and air seems to ameliorate their condition somewhat, but only mechanically, for a rainy season packs them again as solid and compact as ever. What they require is a chemical operation that shall neutralize or change the combination of soda to render it harmless to plant growth. This the application of gypsum acts upon alkali soil to produce reclamation, we quote from Professor Hilgard himself:

1. It will convert the corrosive soda into inert Glauber's salt, thus removing the injury now done to growing plants.

2. It will remove the tendency of the soil to a puddling or tamping, not only by the removal of the soda, but positively by substituting therefor the contrary action of all lime salts, of which gypsum is one.

3. It will fix in the soil so reclaimed that important ingredient, the soluble phosphate, which would be leached out, with damaging results to the soil's productivity, were it attempted to reclaim it by drainage alone.

In order that plaster shall accomplish these desirable results and reclaim the land to which it is applied, it must be applied during the wet season or while water is available, as the presence of water or moisture is necessary to its action on the soda or alkali.

We would further remark that alkali spots generally are lower than surrounding soils, caused, probably, from the fact that the soil is more compact or tamped. In all such cases drainage will greatly assist in the restoration of these lands to productivity, but drainage alone will not fully accomplish the object. We would recommend that plaster be applied by degrees, that is, experimentally. Apply some, say this season, while the land is under cultivation, and observe its effects. Apply again next season, or the time the land is cultivated, and so continue till a full reclamation is effected.

There are a number of localities in this State and on this Coast in which gypsum is very abundant and easily obtained, so that if it shall be demanded for agricultural purposes it can be supplied on such terms as will render it available in any required quantity. The demand will very readily produce the supply. The importance and practical value of this application can hardly be over estimated. It will very largely increase the productive area, and greatly augment the production of the present acreage cultivated. Nor is the application and value confined to this State, but it will be even of greater value to Nevada, Utah and several of the Territories east of the Sierra and Rocky Mountains.

Gold Hill News: A new terror now lies in wait for those who go about the country in railroad cars, something that throws the peasant and popcorn peddler wholly in the shade, and makes one contemplate travel with positive horror. While a train on the Pacific road was making thirty and forty miles an hour, the other day, Miss May Fisk, a cousin of the late lamented James Fisk, Jr., with a display of cheek which seems to distinguish the whole family, entered the parlor car, and without ceremony, reeled off a speech in behalf of woman suffrage. The motion of the train did not throw her off her balance, and she held her audience throughout the discourse because there was no possible way for anybody to get out. We fear this is opening the floodgates of talk in the wrong place, and between suffrage-talkers and the monte men innocent folks will not dare to go away from home.

KELSEY'S NURSERIES

San Francisco Letter.

Universal Dullness—Wrecks on the Sea of Journalism—The Dead Artists—Romance—Duncan, the Martyr.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13, 1878.
 Editor Gazette: After having been for more than six weeks under water, with an occasional half-day or more dampness in which to catch her breath, San Francisco bobs to the surface again, and as I write this the sun is shining and the wind is from the north. I never knew before there was so much water overhead, and my respect for the clerk of the weather is tremendously increased. A dry day is a positive treat, and a treat of any kind is doubly enjoyable these days down here where everything is so hideously dull. Of course I can't tell the Gazette anything about the thousands of men out of work and the army of poor devils who have been saved from starvation by the free meals which charity has spread for them. But it is not only laborers who are suffering. Business in all its branches nearly seems to be flooded. During a residence of ten years I have never seen the blood of the city so stagnant. There is a mighty hankering everywhere for a big discovery in some of your outside mines. Right or wrong we want a booming stock market again if for nothing more than to pick the town up and shake the winter wrinkles out of it. Nobody—at least nobody that I am acquainted with—has much hopes that the delightful shock will come from the Comstock. That ledge is sat upon with crushing weight by one firm, and no matter what may come to light in the way of richness there, on big paw will cover all in sight. There is apparently no chance for outsiders from that quarter, so outsiders won't buy. For what is the use of anteing and putting up today, to say nothing of betting, when you know that the man who has the deal has given himself four aces? Turn up the turf somewhere in the neighborhood of Reno, can't you, and uncover a decent mine or two!

A GRATIFYING EPIDEMIC
 The hard times have resulted in some good. Within two months five newspapers have wrapped their unpaid bills around them and lain down to rest. The Mail, a paper which had a good field and plenty of money to back it, died from the sheer idiocy of its manager—one D. Dalziel, an Australian youth without brains, experience or any other quality which would fit him for a higher position than that of an office boy. He sunk over $50,000 for the McDonalds, who chose him for their figurehead. The Mail, in its death struggle, consolidated with the Echo, a small concern, and both died together a few weeks ago with the assistance of the Sheriff. The Globe, a paper issued by a brace of printers cheated out of their wages by Dalziel lived for a few weeks only and devoted its short life to making it lively for the Australian, by publishing chapters of his private history. Two weeklies, the Portico and Leader gave their final gasps just before the Globe was buried, so that now the Argonaut among the weeklies, and the Post among the dailies are the youngest living. There is a clear field for a Democratic daily—a first-class newspaper—and if it can be built without the dead weight of political axes to grind would live and make money.

TWO ARTISTS' DEATHS
 James Hamilton, the marine painter, died here yesterday. It is little more than a week since Charles Nahl was buried. The latter has a coast reputation only. Hamilton's is a national one. The one death following so closely upon the other naturally puts the men in one's mind together, but they illustrated the extremes of artist-life. Nahl was one of the most retiring men possible. He shut himself within himself and had very few intimates, devoting himself to the production of those extraordinary pictures of early Californian and Mexican life—awfully jumbled, like a house on fire as regards color, but wonderful in drawing and action. Nahl had not stayed in California for the past twenty years, and had taken something besides dusty memories for subjects and not wholly trusted his inner consciousness for ideas of composition and atmosphere, he would have been better known than Hamilton. Some of his imitative work—butterflies, humming birds, and the like—are marvels of skill and beauty, and would have made his fortune abroad. He lived a clean, sedate and almost cloister like life, not even associating with his fellow artists, and died worth $50,000, respected by all who had ever known him, however slightly. Hamilton was one of the old school Bohemians—full of talent, and lucky enough to have spasms of industry, during which in years past he turned out some splendid marine pictures—free, dashing, striking and natural. His Bohemianism proved the death of him, however. However charming roystering may be in a young fellow of talent in his twenties, it isn't pretty when the same genius staggers toward sixty and has domestic responsibilities. Poor Hamilton! For his own sake few will be sorry that rest has come to him after a feverish, miserable life. It is sad that such words should be said of one whose noble pictures have made his name so known and honored. He can be compared aptly to one of the lost burning wrecks with which he was so fond of illuminating with fierce light his stormy seas.

A SWEET ROMANCE.
 Not quite a year ago the chaste reporters of the sensational papers down here, allowed the public to perceive the thrill of horror which shook their virtuous frames, because a white girl decided to marry a Chinaman. She had been a teacher in one of the Chinese Mission schools. I saw the female myself shortly after she had linked herself with the heathen, and was, as you may suppose, not a little surprised to behold a good looking blonde, well dressed and of good figure. She had light blue eyes, a self-satisfied mouth and appeared to be rather stupid, but altogether she would have come up to the average of the young women one sees at the matinee and on the promenade. The girl's mother, a very pious and manifestly unprejudiced old lady, approved of the extraordinary match, and what was more, gave the shocked reporters to understand that she had another daughter who would likewise marry a Mongolian very soon. Yesterday a friend who knows all the net results of the odd matrimonial experiment up to date said the young woman is heartily sick of her bargain. John treats her like a brute, even giving her an occasional thrashing. He makes her earn her own living by manufacturing overalls and slippers, and conducts himself in every way just as you might expect that a Chinaman would toward a white woman who had been such a baggage as to become his wife. But worse than all—Ugh! I hardly know how to write it—the slut expects every day to make him a father! The bare penning of the fact has unnerved me.

A SAINT IN PRISON.
 A few days ago I dropped into the City Prison for the purpose of making a call upon J. C. Duncan, who is an old acquaintance of mine. He is in the "new prison," an addition to the old one. It consists of five iron cells and a roomy corridor. I found Joe Duncan Jr. installed in the corridor, setting smoking at a little table in social conversation with Barney the newspaper man who was nearly murdered the other night at Baldwin's by a woman who claims to be his injured and deserted wife. She had been arrested after she was herself taken into custody. Duncan, the long-lost and gladdened father, was in the last cell of the row, and when his son got me the permission to enter, I dropped upon quite a pleasant little family party. Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Le Warne were with him. A nice lounge was in the cell, which had been snugly carpeted and otherwise made comfortable. But for the iron walls and other reminders of prison, I might easily have thought myself in a parlor. Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Le Warne are both thorough ladies in appearance and manner, and gave an air of refinement to the surroundings. As for Duncan himself, I could hardly believe the old boy. He looks younger by a good deal than when he last appeared in public, and has a heavy respectability to the offices of the Pioneer Bank. A notice in the paper probably helps to rejuvenate his appearance. All the newspaper talk about his being broken down by grief and terribly aged, is mere nonsense. It ought to be true that he is a little of the younger gentleman for my benefit, and he does it pretty well. I don't think he is in jail, and wouldn't walk out if the doors were opened to him, unless he went out with his character vindicated. Duncan is a smart man and is full of resources. He is heart and soul an adventurer and I shouldn't be surprised if he should come on top again. Notwithstanding his years he has lots of energy and has brains enough to sail his private bark skillfully. The line he has adopted—of declaring himself more injured than any one else by the fall of his bank, and constantly talking of himself as a Christian gentleman suffering an undeserved humiliation—is a good one. Already he has many sympathizers, especially among good, pious people, and, as you may observe, the newspapers are rather more careful in the treatment of his case than they were before his capture. He is very well taken care of in prison, having the free use of the corridor and plenty of agreeable company. His wife is devoted to him and remains by his side night and day. One of his sons also sleeps in the corridor. Duncan has a faithful family at any rate, and as he has also many influential friends, his chances of being let down easy are good. Yours, ISHMAEL.

Bill to Promote the Deposit of Savings and Refunding the National Debt.

WASHINGTON, March 13th.—The bill introduced by Senator Gordon today, to promote the deposit of savings and the refunding of the national debt, provides for the issue of a new series of coupon bonds, in the denominations of $20, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000, bearing 3 per cent interest, payable at the option of the United States, either at the end of twenty years or they may be renewed for a further twenty years. Payment at either date is to be made in the coin of the then legal standard. In order to facilitate exchange on demand of these bonds the $10,000,000 Treasury notes, made a special fund by a joint resolution at the first session of the Forty-fourth Congress are to be replaced by a like amount of the new issue, and made a special fund to secure a prompt exchange of these bonds to which fund shall be added a further $15,000,000—this amount ($25,000,000) to be withheld from circulation so long as there are bonds payable or subject to call, bearing a higher rate of interest than four per cent per annum. The bonds herein directed to be issued shall state upon their face that they are payable upon demand, with secured interest in any legal paper money issued directly by the U. S. Treasury. The Secretary of the Treasury is required to cease further reduction of Treasury notes below the sum of $350,000,000, and to replace old and worn notes, he shall issue a new series of notes, bearing simply the legend that they are fundable into bonds herein authorized at the option of the holder, and receivable for all public and private dues. All United States notes received into the Treasury under this act, except such as are required to keep the Bond Redemption Fund up to $25,000,000, shall be applied exclusively to the payment of any United States bonds redeemable at pleasure, or to the purchase of coin or bullion to be applied exclusively to the payment of such bonds; but new notes shall be substituted for those of previous issues when the latter shall come into the Treasury. The coin in the Treasury shall be held for the sole purpose of paying coin interest on the public debt. And if it shall appear to the Secretary of the Treasury that the present supply of coin is insufficient to meet the coin interest which may become due before the proper money is authorized to come exchangeable with coin at par, he shall dispose of such bonds as may be issued under the Act of Congress at such time for coin in Europe or elsewhere, where it can be done to greater advantage in quantities sufficient to meet such demand for coin from year to year. National banks may hold the bonds herein authorized, and the new issue of greenbacks for their legal reserves, in place of all present reserves, except coin, and after the passage of this Act no tax shall be levied upon deposits in national banks.

THE STORM IN WYOMING.
 A Cheyenne dispatch of the 13th inst., says: All the railroads to this place are now open, except the Colorado Central, which has still about eight miles of hard packed snow to clear. The Denver Pacific trains reached here at noon today. Trains from the west on the Union Pacific came through this morning. Coaches on the Black Hills stages depart daily, but, will doubtless be much delayed going through.

The loss of life from the storm will be considerable. On Thursday last a party of five men, Joe Connoy, H. J. McCann, Chas. Wilson and Messrs. Card and Kuntz, left Laramie City for a hunt, and were caught in the storm. The bodies of the last three named were found yesterday at Cooper lake, twenty miles west of Laramie, and Connoy's body and the bodies of the two horses were found this afternoon. McCann is still missing. Stock men here anticipate only a small loss in cattle—probably two per cent, and in sheep 5 per cent. The weather here today is clear and warm. The snow is rapidly disappearing.

V. & T. Ball.

It was our pleasure, with a number of other Renoites, to attend the grand annual ball given last night in Carson by the employees of the V. & T. R. R. Shortly after 8 o'clock some 200 couples filed down the Theatre Hall, marching to the charming music of Prof. Varney's string band. The hall was filled beyond comfort, and many were, in consequence, compelled to sit as spectators. The hall was handsomely and appropriately decorated, the committees had made every provision for a grand party, therefore we need not enter into any description of what our readers have all seen if not participated in. Of the two hundred present there were about 30 couples from this county and out East, and 82 from Virginia and Goshute Hill. The ball, in point of numbers was nearly double what the railroad boys had calculated on, but all were entertained. The supper at the Ormsby House was first-class. There is not a man in Nevada who can excel John T. Pantlind, the proprietor of the Ormsby, in getting up an elegant supper. Pantlind runs by far the best hotel in Carson. He understands his business, and is withal a perfect gentleman. We may, with pardonable digression, recommend our citizens when in Carson to stop at the Ormsby House. To illustrate that the V. & T. boys spared no expense to make their party a success, and first-class in every respect, we would state that the bills of supper fare cost $70. The V. & T. employees may justly feel proud over the success of this their third annual ball.

Fish Commissioner Attention.

To-day we learned from reliable sources, that several parties near Camp 37 or Vista are destroying trout in the Truckee river in wholesale quantities. We are informed, that they use in catching these fish a net similar to a drag net. Also giant or vulcan powder and other unlawful and lawful devices. By these means they catch a large amount of trout in just above Wadsworth. It is seen, immense numbers of trout coming up the river to spawn, but we know that here at Reno but few fish are to be found, or can be caught in the river. We would, therefore, call the attention of Fish Commissioner Hub Parker, and our officers, to the flagrant violations of the laws protecting fish, as herein stated. It may be that the report which has reached our ears is an overdrawn statement of the charges made, but our information comes very straight, and the names of the parties engaged in this unlawful enterprise, and the places where they are operating, as well as other accompanying facts, as given, warrant us in calling prompt attention to the abuse of which just complaint has been made, and now made. Our laws preventing the wholesale destruction of fish should be rigidly enforced.

SCHOOL BOND ELECTION.—The School Trustees have set April 13th as the day during which all legal voters may vote on the $20,000 school house proposition. The books of registration, in which all voters' names must appear, are now open at Justice Richardson's office. By the law, persons otherwise eligible to vote, must, in order to exercise that prerogative register their names, if not already registered, within the next 20 days, thus leaving, after the expiration of the 20 days time of registration and before the 13th proximo, ten days, during which the right to challenge may be exercised. Voters will bear this in mind and govern themselves accordingly. We believe the sentiment of our citizens is that the proposition of the Trustees shall obtain.

TRAIN ON TRAIL.—The first through train from the Eastern States, since the 7th instant arrived in town a few minutes before ten o'clock to-day. This train waited in Ogden 12 hours for the Eastern mail, which has been blocked for one week on the Union Pacific by snow. There was therefore no west-bound overland last night. The train was an unusually large one and on board a large number of passengers and a heavy load. The Humpy Dumpty train, numbering 13, and Mrs. J. P. Jones were among the passengers. The Humpy Dumpty's will give entertainments in California, and on their return East will favor Reno.

TOTTINGS.

Mrs. Bowers will remain through this week and perhaps the greater portion of next week at the Pollard House. Her business is too remunerative to leave.

Mr. A. Fox of Gold Hill, Assessor of Storey county, was in town to-day.

Our readers will find on the second page a very interesting letter from a San Francisco correspondent.

The tumble in stocks makes the financial thermometer very low.

District Court again next Monday.

The County Commissioners probably will not meet before the 14th prox.

Those desirous of raising fine chickens and potatoes will find two "ads" in another column which will prove of interest to them.

A vendor of Japan persimmon trees is in town. He ships his trees from Oakland, having previously shipped them from Iowa.

Persons about town having trees, shrubs and flowers are trimming the same. Gardens are being cultivated, and the prospects are that two or three months hence our town will look something like the garden spot of Nevada.

A serio-comic gentleman of accredited ability suggests that the editor of the Journal failed to give a full, true and impartial account of the fight at the Court-house with the "Type Writer." It caught the editor of the Journal and printed a certain scriptural passage familiar to readers of the decalogue on a portion of his wearing apparel. We did not witness the operation, but as the gentleman to whom we allude was an eye witness, we may infer that he is sufficiently correct in his jocose affirmation.

Mr. Wm. Driscoll, Superintendent of the Nevada Quicksilver Mine, was in town yesterday. He says that a tramway will be constructed next week from the upper claim to the top of the hill just above the tunnel, and from the top of this hill to the tunnel mouth a chute will be run. Near the tunnel an ore shed capable of holding 5,000 tons of ore will shortly be built. These and other improvements are now being made, and the furnace in consequence is not actively employed in reducing the mercurial ores.

James Breen, L. T. Cowie and Ah Dock were indicted yesterday morning by the Grand Jury on the charge of setting at liberty before trial a man charged with murder. The bail in each case is fixed at $5,000. J. H. Ripley was indicted for horse-stealing. He is at present in the County Jail. Va. Enterprise.

SOUTH-SIDE SCHOOL MEETING.—Residents of the south side of the river will meet at the Court House on Monday evening, March 18, at 7 o'clock to consider school matters. The Trustees are requested to be present.

CARD OF THANKS.

We, the undersigned, wish to tender our thanks to Mr. J. A. Brunney, State Agent and Mr. James H. Marshall, City Agent of the Home Mutual Fire Insurance Company of San Francisco, for the highly satisfactory and unprecedented manner in which the representatives of the above named Company have settled their portion of the loss which we sustained at the late fire on Frisbie's corner. We take great pleasure in recommending the Home Mutual Insurance Company to the insuring public for honest, square, and high-toned dealing. Tracyovich Bros., Carson Appeal, Jan. 29, 1878.

INSURE in the Home Mutual. If your property is destroyed by fire and you are fortunate enough to hold one of our policies, your money is ready and paid when you most need it. No litigation or trouble. TRACYOVICH BROS., CARSON APPEAL, JAN. 29, 1878.
